

Everyday PBL: Unlocking the Pedagogy Behind the Project
September 26
Agenda

The Flip (before the session): Approximately a week before the session, participants will receive information to preview that will help maximize the use of our time together, and give participants time to think about an area of their curriculum on which they could focus in planning a project-based unit.

The morning of September 26 will include discussion and activities related to:

- Elements of project-based learning
- PBL as a project and as an instructional approach.

LUNCH

The afternoon will include activities related to:

- Practicing good feedback
- Building in project elements that drive student engagement and a quality product
- Setting goals for the coming month(s)
- Determining follow-up connections that will support the work in the coming months

Before, during, and after the session, check out @PBL_Peyton on Twitter!